To Attend

COMMENCEMENT

May 28--June 3

nesday and Thursday, and, finally, the week was climaxed with the Friday morning chapel service which in the estimation of many was the most outstanding single service witnessed at N. N. C. for a long time. Conviction was intense; exhortations were given "with strong crying and tears". It was estimated that over forty souls were seeking God in various parts of the chapel. The service did not conclude until the middle of the afternoon.

This revival wave of the past few weeks has been characterized in two ways. First it has been a revival of religious freedom. People have obeyed the Holy Spirit and the result has been that the chapel has been the scene of tremendous manifestations reminding one of the days of yore. The second characteristic is the emphasis which has been laid on the necessity of entire sanctification. Many souls sought for hours and some for days, dying out to the world and worldly ambitions, worldly associates, and the old carnal nature. The process was hard and tedious, but the victories obtained were glorious. We believe that these individuals will not care to go through the process again, but have died out once and for all and have received the Holy Spirit in His fullness. We are fully convinced that in this day and generation, where so many things bid for the attention of young people, the consecration must be complete and entire and the "dying out process" must be experienced or else the individual will be unstable and his religion superficial. But it is still possible, thank God, for a person to surrender completely and entirely die out and know when the Holy Spirit comes in. Let us have more of this. Let us encourage our young people to seek until they are satisfied and until they have completely died out to the things of this world.

The revival atmosphere still prevails; souls are still under conviction and seeking God. We approach our spring revival with Evangelist T. M. Anderson and wish that the readers of this article might join us in prayer that this coming meeting may go beyond anything we have known in Nampa. The meeting will open Monday, March 3, and continue throughout Sunday, March 16.

In concluding this article I feel like saying, let us as Nazarenes keep the glory and blessing upon our services, encourage holy demonstration, insist on complete and entire consecration, and stay with our seekers until they have completely died out and received the blessing. More burden, greater passion, clearer vision, and more far-reaching revivals are the need of the hour.

We must, as Nazarenes, issue a challenge to modernism and infidelity as Elijah did on Mount Carmel and let the God who answers by fire be God. Formalism and intellectualism will never meet the needs of our day. We must combine with intellectualism a mighty passion under the blessing and leadership of the Holy Spirit.

The District Budget

Less than three months of the school year remains. We are counting on the district budget enable us to pay faculty salaries and other expenses in full. It is wonderful how God has blessed us financially in the past two or three year, and we must not fail to keep the credit of Northwest Nazarene College good. If each church and pastor will cooperate and see that their district budget is paid, we shall have sufficient funds to close the school year without a deficit. We are depending on you; don't fail us. Let the Northwest Educational Zone so cooperate that we can announce to the Church that our institution is meeting its obligations and is not running in debt.

Faculty Loving-Cup

After a semester of intense interest and close competition it was computed that the Sigma Lambda Alpha Society had gained the greatest number of contest points and at a recent chapel service was thus presented with the faculty loving-cup by President DeLong. The faculty loving-cup will become the possession of the society winning it three times, the Olympian and Sigma Lambda Alpha societies have each won the cup twice. The rivalry between these two societies this semester will be intense because of the fact that if either organization should win, the cup will become its permanent possession. From present indications, it looks as though the Alpha Delta Phi Society might surprise the other two and win out and thus continue the competition another year.

The program as outlined by the Athletic-Literary Council for the second semester will include competition in four literary programs, basket ball, tennis, baseball, and track. We predict an interesting race.

Missionary Society Activities

The College Missionary Society which is composed of the faculty and student body of N.N.C., and which is the organization through which the interest of evangelism at home and abroad is cared for, has set out to raise during the second semester, at least $500 for the Girls' Home in Africa, being persuaded that it is the will of the Lord to do so.

Acting upon the suggestion of Dr. Morrison that the Girls' Home is possibly the most pressing need on our mission fields at this time, after much prayer and waiting upon the Lord for divine guidance, representatives of the missionary executive council presented this need and exhorted sacrificial giving at the chapel service on Tuesday, February 11. This service was marked by a very unusual manifestation of the presence of the Lord and was crowned with a large number seeking and finding God.

Those on whom the direct responsibility of the project lies have been earnestly striving to ascertain the mind of the Lord relative to the various services to be held in connection with the enterprise, and especially the means of securing the money; and it is believed that the will of God has been found namely, to bring weekly, throughout the semester, unless the Spirit prompts otherwise, our various offerings. This plan has met with general approval and has been accompanied by that sweet assurance that one experiences when he knows he is in divine order. —L. SEAMAN

Debating News

The debating season is in full swing. The first inter-collegiate debate was held Monday evening, February 10, between Northwest Nazarene College and Weber College of Ogden, Utah. The question for debate by the colleges this year is, "Resolved that the nations should adopt a policy of complete disarmament excepting such forces as are necessary for police purposes." The affirmative was upheld for Northwest Nazarene College by Messrs. Donald Harper and Robert Coulter. The negative was upheld for Weber College by Messrs. Shrieve and Bramwell. The judges for the debate were George H. Van de Steeg, Nampa attorney; Fred Ruiz, debate coach of Nampa High School, and W. E. Goodell, debate coach of Meridian High School. The decision was rendered two to one in favor of Northwest Nazarene College.

The second inter-collegiate debate was held Saturday evening, February 15, between Northwest Nazarene College and Wheaton College of Illinois. The negative was upheld for Northwest Nazarene College by Messrs. Willard Harper, Ross Price, and Lee Rodda. The affirmative was upheld for Wheaton College by Messrs. Zaun, Sorenson, and Paine. This was one of the most interesting debates ever held at Nampa. The decision went to the affirmative. Much interest is being exhibited in the inter-collegiate debates, which is evidenced by the fact that the chapel has been full on each occasion.

Second Semester Opening

The second semester opened Monday, February 3, with a much larger enrollment than the second semester of last year. We were delighted to welcome a number of new students and also some former students who returned to continue their courses. We have had a glorious opening not only from a numerical standpoint, but more particularly from a spiritual standpoint.

At the second Friday morning chapel service of the semester practically every unsaved or unsanctified student was seeking the Lord. Continue to pray for us that this semester may eclipse anything we have known in the past. Plan now to come and visit us for our great Commencement season, May 29—June 3.

What N. N. C. Has Meant To Me

One clear cold morning in September, 1917, a little six year old boy trudged along the path leading from the town of Nampa out to what was then known as Northwest Nazarene College. The college was located about a mile from town in the midst of a large acreage of nothing more or less than gray sage-brush. There were at the time only two buildings. There were the present administration building and a part of the girls' dormitory. A small four-room shack, located in in the northeast corner of the campus and known as the "den", served as the men's dormitory. Such was my first impression of Northwest Nazarene College as I entered it that year as a student in the first grade of the grammar school.

Altogether I have spent some nineteen semesters here at N. N. C. I have grown to love the school and it has had a great deal to do in the molding of the tenor of my own life.

While the school has meant much to me in many ways perhaps the greatest blessing it has been to me is that under its influence I wept my way to an altar of prayer and found God. This is the greatest event in any man's life. To be completely transformed and made anew in Christ Jesus is the outstanding peak above all others which goes to mold and make us what we are. So I am indeed thankful and appreciative of the influence the school has had upon my life in this way.

Every man or woman is influenced to a greater or less degree by his friends and associates. We form our ideals and standards to a great extent by the standards and ideals of those around us. If then those whom we look up to and admire have high ideals of life and its meaning and purpose, we naturally imbibe to a certain degree those same high standards of conduct which we see in them. Northwest Nazarene College has always stood for the highest and best and noblest type of Christian character. The students and associates one meets in a school like N. N. C. inspire in an individual the desire to live the better life. The school then helps to form and create high ideals in the minds of the students toward which to drive.

Dorothy Canfield Fisher in a recent article in the American Magazine has said that the great need in the lives of men and women today is an objective to work toward. The Apostle Paul expressed the same sentiment when he said, "Forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those those things which are before, I press toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Across the front of our chapel in large letters are these words, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His Righteousness." I have taken this motto of N. N. C. as my personal objective in life.

Northwest Nazarene College has helped me to find what I consider the most important needs in life—harmony, peace, and joy with my Creator and an objective in life toward which to strive.
